College of Education & Human Sciences

105 Henzlik, 472-8625

The College of Education and Human Sciences offers a wide range of teaching and non-teaching programs that prepare students to work in a variety of professions and occupations. In addition to classroom opportunities, most undergraduate programs provide students a practicum or internship experience in their chosen professional field. The college also provides students with a broad liberal arts education, which seeks to strengthen skills in communication and problem solving, while placing an emphasis in multicultural and global perspectives.

Planning your first semester's class schedule.

You will have the opportunity to meet with a college adviser who will help you to design your first semester class schedule. However, before sitting down with your advisor you are encouraged to use the information found on these pages to begin developing your own schedule of classes.

Child, Youth, and Family Studies, Nutrition and Health Sciences and Textile, Clothing and Design majors

In-coming freshmen are not necessarily restricted to, or are required to take classes listed below. Depending on your particular major, your advisor may have specific recommendations as to what classes you should take during the fall semester.
